|----------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Format   | Instagram Reel (9:16 vertical)                                                               |
| Duration | ~20 seconds                                                                                  |
| Tone     | Warm family comedy — desi humour, no slapstick. Deadpan beats land harder than loud ones.    |
| Music    | Soft Pakistani background score — light tabla or acoustic strings. Playful, not dramatic.    |
| Cast     | Baba (dad, great hair), Mama (mom), Beta (young son), Iqbal Uncle (bald, good sport)         |
| Setting  | Pakistani living room — afternoon light, traditional furniture, warm tones                   |
| Hair     | Baba's hair is the hero. Full, healthy, well-oiled. Contrast with Iqbal Uncle is everything. |

Script

0:00 – 0:04 ESTABLISH

WIDE SHOT — LIVING ROOM

A warm Pakistani living room. Afternoon light through a window. Baba sits in his armchair reading the newspaper — hair impeccably oiled and styled. Mama sits nearby, reading the Quran, completely at peace. The scene is calm, familiar, domestic.

SOUND: Soft background score. Ambient home sounds — a fan, birds outside.

0:04 – 0:08 THE QUESTION

MEDIUM SHOT — SON ENTERS FRAME

Beta, maybe 8–10 years old, walks into the living room with the energy of someone who has just made a very important discovery. He stops in front of Baba and looks up at him with complete seriousness.

"Baba... Iqbal uncle ka koi baal kyun nahi hai?"

Beta — delivered with the full sincerity of a child asking about the meaning of life.

SOUND: Music softens. Background score drops almost to silence.

0:08 – 0:09

MAMA REACTION

CLOSE-UP — MAMA

Mama does not look up from the Quran. She simply closes her eyes slowly and gives the tiniest, most imperceptible shake of her head. She has been expecting this question for years.

COMEDY NOTE

COMEDY BEAT: The slower and more imperceptible this head shake is, the funnier it lands. She should look like she is suppressing her entire soul.

SOUND: A single soft tabla beat.

---

0:09 – 0:11

IQBAL UNCLE — CUT AWAY

CLOSE-UP HEAD SHOT — IQBAL UNCLE

Hard cut to a perfectly framed, well-lit close-up of Iqbal Uncle's bald head. He is seated somewhere neutral. He slowly turns and looks directly into the camera. Completely deadpan. He says nothing. He simply exists.

COMEDY NOTE

COMEDY BEAT: Iqbal Uncle should mouth the words 'main sun sakta hoon' (I can hear you) — silently, directly to camera. No subtitles needed. The audience will understand. Optionally he can raise one eyebrow.

SOUND: Complete silence for half a beat. Then the score resumes.

0:11 – 0:14

BABA'S RESPONSE

MEDIUM CLOSE-UP — BABA

Baba slowly lowers his newspaper. He looks at his son for a moment with the calm wisdom of a man who has all the answers. He says nothing. He folds the newspaper neatly, sets it aside, reaches to the side table — and picks up the IMSRA bottle. He holds it out to his son.

COMEDY NOTE

COMEDY BEAT: Baba should not rush this. The slower and more deliberate he is — fold newspaper, set down, pick up bottle, extend arm — the funnier and more dignified it becomes. This is a man who planned for this moment.

SOUND: Warm score swells gently.

0:14 – 0:16

BETA STUDIES THE BOTTLE

CLOSE-UP — SON'S FACE

Beta takes the bottle and stares at it with intense, furrowed-brow concentration — like he has just been handed classified information. He looks up at Baba, then back at the bottle.

COMEDY NOTE

COMEDY BEAT: Optional — Beta looks over his shoulder in the direction of Iqbal Uncle's house, then back at the bottle. No words. The implication is clear.

SOUND: A single soft note holds.

---

0:16 – 0:18

END CARD

TITLE CARD — WARM CREAM BACKGROUND

SOUND: Score fades warmly.

Direction Notes

|                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|----------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Tone           | This is warm family comedy — not a sketch show. The humour comes from truth and timing, not performance. Direct everyone to underplay. The deadpan family unit is funnier than a mugging one.                      |
| Baba's hair    | Baba's hair must look genuinely great. Well-oiled, full, healthy. The comedy only works if the contrast with Iqbal Uncle is real. Budget for a hairstylist on set.                                                 |
| Iqbal Uncle    | Cast someone who can hold a perfectly straight face. The bald head close-up is the punchline — it must be well-lit, clean, and held for a beat longer than feels comfortable. That extra half-second is the laugh. |
| Beta's casting | Cast a child who is naturally earnest and serious. The question must sound completely genuine — no winking at the camera. The innocence is the joke.                                                               |
| Mama           | The smallest performance in the ad and potentially the funniest. She must not react — she simply endures. Rehearse the head shake until it barely exists.                                                          |
| Pacing         | Do not rush. Every beat needs space to breathe — especially Baba folding the newspaper and Iqbal Uncle's direct-to-camera moment. Comedy timing is everything here.                                                |
| IMSRA bottle   | The bottle should be on the side table from the very first shot — in the background, visible but not obvious. Audiences who catch it on rewatch will love it.                                                      |
